Where Condors Reign: Vertical Archaeology in the Mountains of Peru

J. Marla Toyne, Ph.D.
Assistant Professor, Bioarchaeology in the UCF Department of Anthropology

Tuscawilla Country Club
1500 Winter Springs Blvd
Winter Springs, FL 32708

Abstract: Traditional archaeological practice involves mapping and excavating ancient settlements and cemeteries. Bioarchaeological research of the cliff tombs in the Chachapoyas region of Peru is hindered by natural and technological challenges. Exploring these cemeteries requires the innovation of "vertical archaeology" which uses rappelling and rope technology and the incorporation of 3-D photogrammetry and aerial drone photography.

Hard Lives, Mean Streets: Violent Victimization Among Homeless Women Living in Florida

Homelessness can be the adaptive response of women to battering or other abusive situations and there is reason to believe that the cycle of violence and the cycle of homelessness are the same cycle for at least some women.

OF THEE I SING
UCF Main Stage
October 12 – October 22
The first musical to win the Pulitzer Prize
This all-American political satire focuses on the election campaign and Presidency of John P. Watergreen, whose party, lacking a viable platform, runs on love, promising that if elected he will marry the partner chosen for him at an Atlantic City beauty pageant. When he falls for the wrong woman, trouble begins! With politicians skewered right and left, Of Thee I Sing is an hilarious and timeless send-up of national institutions that is as relevant now as ever.

LEFTOVERS
A SETH HANCOCK FILM

Free Documentary Screening
Leftovers” tells the story of LA photographer, Seth Hancock, who was asked to make a film on a subject that meant nothing to him... Senior Citizens and Hunger. Traveling the country, he discovers that seniors are the new face of hunger in America, why they are often treated as second-class citizens, and what it will take to feed them. Through this journey, his apathy is transformed into advocacy, bringing awareness to the hidden problem of senior hunger with the hope that it will spur action toward solutions.
